

notes

SCHOOL BOARD NOTES • MARCH 4, 2014 • VOL. XXXVII NO. 29

Education-Business Partnerships are Focus of Junior Achievement of New Jersey Breakfast

Junior Achievement of New Jersey, a nonprofit that conducts educational programs on economic and entrepreneurial topics, held its annual breakfast benefit recently.

Among the speakers were Dr. Lawrence S. Feinsod, NJSBA executive director and a director of the organization, who spoke about how Junior Achievement helps to fill the employability skills and financial literacy gaps in the education system. Ron Jaworski, businessman, ESPN analyst and former Philadelphia Eagles quarterback, spoke about leadership and empowering young people to own their economic success.

Left to right: John Bulina, NJSBA president, Kevin O'Sullivan, Crowe Horwath LLP; Patricia Chiaro, Washington township high school business education teacher and 2013 Junior Achievement Educator of the Year; Corey Parmiter, former Washington Township student; Na-Tori Nance, Hightstown High School student; Dr. Lawrence S. Feinsod, NJSBA executive director; Catherine Milone, president, Junior Achievement of New Jersey; Ron Jaworski, former Philadelphia Eagles quarterback